To Whom It May Concern:

Re: Private Subdivision Restrictions

Dear Sir or Madam:

Many subdivisions and other parcels of real estate in Franklin County have private restrictions and/or covenants which govern the use of property. In many instances, such restrictions and/or covenants are more strict than County regulations. Although Franklin County does not enforce such restrictions or covenants due to the fact that they are "private contracts," such does not mean that the restrictions and/or covenants are not valid and binding. County regulations are more general in nature whereas private restrictions and/or covenants are usually more specific and are designed to meet the requirements and needs of the particular subdivision or neighboring property.

The property for which you have applied for a permit may be situated within a subdivision which has its own restrictions and/or covenants or is otherwise controlled. As it is not Franklin County's obligation to determine the validity or applicability of any such restriction or covenant, it is incumbent upon you as the property owner to do so.

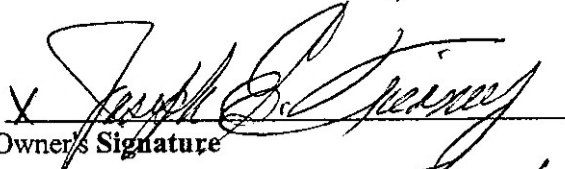

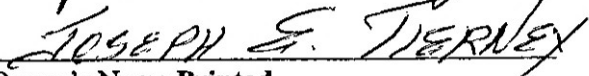

The Franklin County Building Department has approved your permit and by this letter has informed you, that the subject property may be governed by the private restrictions and/or covenants. If restrictions do exist and if you fail to comply with such, the governing body of the subdivision or an adjoining property owner may bring a civil action against you for violation thereof. In the event that there is a conflict between County regulations and a private restriction, the more restrictive provision will govern.

When you pick up your permit, you will be asked to sign a copy of this letter acknowledging your receipt thereof. A copy will be placed in your file.

Yours very truly,

WILLIAM PLACHT
Building Department
