The land is incredibly diverse, offering something for everyone. The topography is just steep enough to provide scenic views without limiting access, whether on foot, riding an ATV, or side-by-side. The property is primarily hardwoods, with a top pasture field, bottom tillable fields, and scattered cedars.

If live water is on your wishlist, this place delivers. Little Sandy Creek winds through the property, often flowing or holding pools of water year-round. A two-tier lake features a cascading waterfall that ultimately feeds into the creek. Geese, wood ducks, and other waterfowl are frequent visitors. The pond is stocked and if you walk the banks slowly, you might glimpse what's waiting to be hooked.

One of this property's standout features is its hunting potential. With quality deer harvested here annually, it stands out as a powerhouse 64± acre hunting tract. Multiple 140"+ bucks have been taken, with even larger deer seen or harvested every year. It's an ideal spot for St. Louis and surrounding area hunters looking for a close and productive hunting camp.

Existing trail systems are quad-friendly and ready to be expanded for larger side-by-sides. This one truly delivers when it comes to a property that offers it all with a residence, weekend retreat, hunting paradise, or a recreational haven.
